

Browse

Collections

Disciplines

Authors

Search

Enter search terms:

in this series

Advanced Search

Notify me via email or RSS

Author Corner

Author FAQ

Submit Research

About This Collection

School of Graduate Studies and Research

Links

Terms of Use

Brooks Library

ALL MASTER'S THESES

An Analysis of County and Community Resources Available for Social Studies and Science Classes in the Bisbee, Arizona, Area

Lulu G. Smith, Central Washington University

Document Type

Thesis

Date of Degree Completion

1968

Degree Name

Master of Education (MEd)

Department

Education

Committee Chair

John E. Davis

Second Committee Member

Darwin J. Goodey

Third Committee Member

John A. Schwenker

Abstract

It is the purpose of this study to determine some county and community resources available for use in the social studies and science classes of the elementary schools in the Bisbee, Arizona, area.

Recommended Citation

Smith, Lulu G., "An Analysis of County and Community Resources Available for Social Studies and Science Classes in the Bisbee, Arizona, Area" (1968). All Master's Theses. 988.
<https://digitalcommons.cwu.edu/etd/988>

Comments

Redacted pages from this Masters Thesis are available to view through the print copy in the library's main stacks.

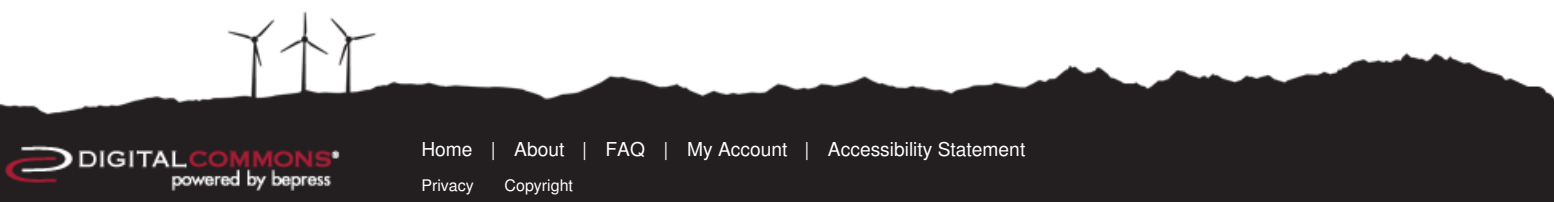

Language

English

INCLUDED IN

Curriculum and Instruction Commons, Educational Methods Commons, Science and Mathematics Education Commons

SHARE

Another overlapping discipline, social science is a broad study of societal relations that includes elements of sociology, psychology, and history. In a social science degree program, you will find yourself tackling courses such as Anthropology of Gender, Advanced Communications in Society, Global Socioeconomic Perspectives, and Statistics for the Behavioral and Social Sciences. Your research and critical analysis will allow you to evaluate and posit solutions to society's greatest challenges. In addition to studying Social Theory and Problems, courses in the sociology degree program also cover elements of psychology and social science, giving you knowledge in a broad range of social and behavioral sciences. Why Choose Social and Behavioral Science? Urban Studies and Planning Commons™. Open Access. Using Ferguson, MO as an exemplar, the authors offer a contextual analysis of a community recently in the spotlight for the killing of an unarmed black man by a law enforcement officer. Through the lens of the social determinants of health, we examine "place" as a powerful determinant of health and community outcomes. We consider the implications of public policies and the subsequent impact on social and economic context. The authors highlight the existence of social, economic, environmental, political, and cultural factors experienced by Blacks in Ferguson, MO Go to article. Topical Area Ethics History of science Legal issues Policy issues Scientific argumentation Scientific method Pseudoscience Regulatory issues Science and the media Social issues Social justice issues Women in science.

Date. Date 2020 2019 2018 2017 2016 2015 2014 2013 2012 2011 2010 2009 2008 2007 2006 2005 2004 2003 2002 2001 1999. Start with a Story: The Case Study Method of Teaching College Science. A collection of 40+ essays examining every aspect of the case study method and its use in the science classroom. Learn More. As a core area in the K-12 curriculum, social studies prepares students for their postsecondary futures, including the disciplinary practices and literacies needed for college-level work in social studies academic courses, and the critical thinking, problem solving, and collaborative skills needed for the workplace. The C3 Framework encourages the development of state social studies standards that support students in learning to be actively engaged in civic life. standards for Literacy in History/Social Studies, Science, and Technical Subjects. The C3 Framework was written by experts in the academic disciplines and social studies education in collaboration with classroom teachers, state social studies education leaders, and representatives of professional organizations.