Title:	Just Deserts: Reading, Writing and Rewarding Australian Women's Crime Fiction
Author:	Byrne, Jessie
Issue Date:	2019
School/Discipline:	School of Humanities : English and Creative Writing
Abstract:	This thesis combines an original novel 'Angel Port' and an exegesis on the Davitt Awards. 'Angel Port' is a contemporary literary comic crime novel, named for a fictional seaside town in which the protagonist Nathan Newland must choose between transformation and retreat when confronted with the local secrets. The exegesis offers original research into the establishment, development and impact of the Davitt Awards, Sisters in Crime Australia's crime-writing awards for books by Australian women. The novel and exegesis are loosely linked through the exploration of the idea of just deserts, both good and ill.

IELTS Writing Task 2/ IELTS Essay: You should spend about 40 minutes on this task. Under the British and Australian laws a jury in a criminal case has no access to information about the defendant's past criminal record. This protects the person who is being accused of the crime. Some lawyers have suggested that this practice should be changed and that a jury should be given all the past facts before they reach their decision about the case. Different nations across the globe have a different set of rules in respect of criminal cases that come across the jury of such nation. The jury under the British and Australian laws has no access as regards the past criminal record of a defendant. This provides an edge to the defendant, as the jury comes to a decision in a vacuum.
