Abstract

A debut short story collection published in a limited-edition hardback in 2016 and in paperback in 2017. The collection contains fourteen short stories that draw on, and creatively respond to, extensive research into folk and fairy tales and related criticism. Two of the stories have been selected for inclusion in the annual Best British Short Stories, one has been translated into Arabic, one has been selected for inclusion in the AQA GCSE English syllabus and selections from the book have been taught at several universities.
