Art deco was led by fashion and the use of motifs depicting nature. It was one of the most exciting decorative styles of the century, and is one that still influences contemporary geometric designs these days. Without further ado, today we're going to inspire you with a few art deco interiors. Art Deco Living Rooms. Elegant art deco living room with purple tinges. by Evelyn Benatar, New York / Photo Credit: Tony Calarco. A stylish, modern way of decorating with art deco in mind is to include just a few touches and not overcrowd the room with geometric elements and the flapper style of the 20s. As a style, Art Deco is easily adapted to suit any interior so that hints of the style still remain. Contemporary re-imaginings of Art Deco furniture are still being designed, which proves the enduring allure of Deco's inherently opulent and luxurious style. To create an Art Deco feel in your interior, think bold and think opulent. Deco is elegant, functional and modern, and though it dates back to the 1920s, this is still the perfect combination for the contemporary home. Whilst it creates a stunning effect to have a full Art Deco interior, it is possible to include Art Deco interior design e... The Art Deco style was hugely influenced by European colonialism and the idea of the "exotic." Lifting artistic references from Asia, Africa, and Mesoamerica, Art Deco was a stylistic melting pot of international influences and various design styles. The exotic associations of Art Deco further intensified with the discovery of the tomb of Tutankhamun in 1922. The ensuing Egyptomania was a major influence on Art Deco, with Egyptian motifs, colors, and styles frequently adopted in the design of jewelry, ceramics, and interiors. The extraordinary facade of Jewish House or Egyptian House in Valenc The Art Deco style (from the French art déco, literally "decorative art") is an influential trend in the interior, architecture and decorative art, which first appeared in France in the 1920s and reached its peak throughout the world in 1930 –1940s. The term Art Deco was given life by an exhibition held in Paris in 1925 under the title Exposition Internationale des Art Décoratifs et Industriels Modernes (International Exhibition of Contemporary Decorative and Industrial Arts). Although the art deco style itself existed before the exhibition – from the beginning of the 20s. As a result, reinterpreted and geometrically simplified elements of the decorative art of Assyria, Babylon, Ancient Egypt and Rome, Aztec and Inca ornaments appeared in the interiors.
